GIVE US A "UNITED STATES" MENU. Now, what in the name of common sense is the object of printing the list of delicacies to be had at the Centennial ball and banquet in French? Is not the language of the fathers of the Republic sufficient to describe the things to eat at a Yankee jubilee feast? Why is it proposed to hide in the mystery of a foreign language from the plain American what there is to satisfy his hunger? The celebration is a United States affair. Give us the menu in the United States lan-

MAKE IT HOT FOR PIREBUGS.

At the hearing yesterday at White Plains of the prisoners charged with attempting the destruction of the Catholic Protectory by fire, young Cassiny testified that his father, who had been discharged from the Protectory for drunkenness, had compelled him to go with him when he made several attempts to burn the buildings.

This is a horrible story, and if true stamps Cassinx as one of the blackest-hearted criminals of the age.

The fiendish attempt to fire that noble institution the Catholic Protectory, with its thousands of helpless little inmates, deserves the severest penalties of the law.

The firebugs should be taught a lesson they will not forget.

A SENSIBLE MOVE.

The railway passenger agents have finally acquiesced in the universal demand for an extension of the time limit of tickets for the Centennial, making the return tickets good until May 6 instead of May 2.

This concession will prove of great benefit to our merchants and of equal convenience to the vast multitude of people who will throng our city during the Centennial.

The railroads will profit by it as much as anybody. Thus another obstacle in the way of the success of the Centennial is happily

FOR THE BAKE OF THE CHILDREN. Gentlemen of the Park Commission, we beg to make a suggestion to you.

Why not open the Central Park ball ground to the children early this year?

The youth of this crowded city need all the exercise they can get, and what is more healthful and exhilarating than playing the National game? The weather is fine and the children are anxiously waiting.

Give the boys a chance to spread themselves at an early day.

A GOOD SUGGESTION.

Yes, why not change the route of the Centennial procession so that Union Square may be utilized for stands? It would be a popular the amendment.

Rhode Island joins the procession and coutributes a grandson of his grandfather to the United States Senate. NATHAN F. DIXON, the Senator-elect, is the grandson of the NATHAN F. DIXON who represented Rhode Island in the Senate half a century ago.

MUNDANE MATTERS.

Joe Howard says that Elbridge T. Gerry spends much of his time, but none of his money, lobbying at Albany. Perhaps he is well paid for his time by his fellow-Burcaucrats.

The Republican "victory" in Rhode Island reminds us of the man who had driven a horse in a race and upon being asked how he came out, replied: "Splendid, sir; I drove them all victoriously before me!"

IN SEARCH OF A WIFE.

And Wants "The Evening World" to Find Him One—She Must Be Well Educated, Accomplished and Refined and Able to Ride a Heree-Dudences Requested Not to Reply.

WIFE WANTED.

I am thirty-three years old, plain-looking, South American by birth and of African ancestry. My business is such that I travel extensively, principally in foreign lands. My wife must be well educated, possessing all the qualifications, graces and accomplishments befitting a lady of good standing. Must have a knowledge of bookkeeping. All the luxuries, comforts and enjoyments that are necessary to make one happy I will give in return. Dudesses and dudines are requested not to apply.

By order of the King.

Address G. R. Lee, care of The Evening World.

The above was written on a glind of pages. WIFE WANTED.

The above was written on a slip of paper which a colored gentleman of good address laid before an EVENING WORLD man with the ment of his case. The reporter had a pleasant chat with the man, who was too modest in stating to candidates for marital honors that he was " plain looking."

Mr. Lee, who is not Mr. Lee, by the way. but possesses a name well known as that of an author, lecturer, clergyman of the English Church and traveller of extended experience. has the face of a student, darker than the coffee berry, and brimming over with intelligent good-nature. His eyes beam through round glassed spectacles, and he converses in sn intellectual strain.

He is now engaged in commercial business as a wholesale drummer, but he was for ten years a missionary. Five years he spent in Hindoostan and five years with Bishop Tayor in the Congo country in South-Central Africa among the Kaffirs, while at one time he was a minister in the Argentine Republic.

He speaks the English, Spanish, Hindoostance and Portuguese languages fluently. and is the author of " A Glance at Africa." published in Boston last year. He is thirtythree years of age and is weary of singleness.
All this the gentleman told the reporter. Then he said:

Then he said:

She must send her card and photograph to me through The Evening World, and there must be a courtship by letter of not less than six nor more than twelve months before marriage."

Here is an opportunity for some dusky belie.

Mr. Lee seems to be all that he claims. He was well dressed, and carried a prosperous-looking sample-case slung over his shoulder. He is in dead earnest, and will receive propositions or overtures from any one who would like to become his wife through this

Save the Children.

[Strong Words from the Metropolis.]
The Herald has been led by its wild jealousy of
The World into a very foolish and untenable position. As the law stands at present, certain charitable societies have arbitrary powers over our children, and the decisions of police justices consigning children to the custody of these societies cannot be reviewed by the higher courts. An amendment now before the Legislature corrects the law and gives the courts the right of revising the proceedingsof the justices. This is a proper and necessary amendment and should be adopted unanimously-but, out of spite against THE EVENING WORLD, which proposed it and has circulated petitions in its favor, the Herald denounces it as a plot to subject our children to the most infamous of outrages. Evidently the acting editor of the Herata, in his rage, has not measured the meaning of words. He can Patterson, Brady and Lawrence would sanction outrages upon children, and yet all of them

Here is the state of the law, drawn, not from the imagination, but from actual fact: Your little girl is playing out of doors. An officer of the Society comes along and arrests her as a vagrant. She is too young to explain. The officer takes her before a police magistrate, who commits her to the custody of the Society. Then there is no legal way by which you can recover your little girl. You cannot go before a judge and show that she was arrested through a mistake or through malice and have her restored to you. If you beg the officers of the Society to give her up, they show you the magistrate's order by which they are bound. If you appeal to the press your child is promptly smuggled out of the State. This may occur to you who read this-to any family in New York, rich or poor. Similar cases have occurred and are matters of record. The judges have denounced the Society in the strongest terms, but declared themselves pow erless to save the children. Hence the amendment which the Heraid now recklessly attacks, threatening legislators with the opposition of religious societies if they dare to vote for it. But every sensible legislator will vote for it because it is just and right, and he will

The only objection brought againt the amendment is that it may give the societies some trouble. What of that? Is is not better for the paid agents of the societies to be troubled than for children to be torn from their parents unlawfully? If the Society is justified in taking a child, the Judge will so decide. If not, of what value is the argument about troubling the Society in face of the fact that a child has been unjustifiably taken from its mother and father? One would suppose that there need be no detate about such a subject, nor would there be were not Mr. Gerry as fanatical a crank as the late Mr. Bergh. He is blind to everything except his own despotic powers. He means well, but does badly. He has stirred up the Heraid with the notion that the amendment is an Evening World idea, and hence the opposion to it. But, whether originated by Tak idea and ought to be carried into effect immedragged away at the option of Mr. Gerry, even | United States. if he had a thousand times the sense, indgment and discretion which he now lacks. If he were Don't Get Caught really wise and benevolent he would support the smendment, because he would not fear to have his actions reviewed by any court.

SESSIONS TO-DAY.

Brought Back from St. Louis by Inspects Byrnes's Detectives Arraigned Before Judge Martine on Charges of Forging Notes for $2,000 and Remanded Back to a Cell.

Julius Schwartz, erstwhile editor of Hungarta, a weekly newspaper published in Centre street, and who ran away some three weeks ago, it is alleged, to avoid creditors, as well as an indictment for forgery which was threatened, has ust been brought back to New York a prisoner. Detective Sergt, Heard, of Inspector Byrnes's Detective-Nergt, Heard, of Inspector Byrness staff, captured him in Kansas City on Sunday, March 31, in the post-office in that city.

Schwartz was with his brother at the time, and he claimed that he was entirely innocent of the charge of forgery on which the warrant was issued. It charged him with forging the name of Moses Buckheimer, of 535 Grand street, Brooklyn, to a promissory note for $700.

He told the detective that he had got tired of New York life and was going to live in Denver, where he thought there were better chances for a bright young man.

New York life and was going to live in Denver, where he thought there were better chances for a bright young man.

The detective said he must come to New York, a proposition to which he strenuously objected, and made such a kick that catradition papers had to be obtained. The brother came back with the detective and his prisoner as far as Jersey City, but would not cross the river.

This morning Behwartz was arraigned before Judge Martine in General Bessions. He had no counsol nor any one to furnish ball, and as he pleaded not guilty he was held without ball. He showed no nervousness whatever, and answered the questions put to him in a clear voice. Schwartz was a candidate for Congress in the Eighth District against John Henry McCarthy at the last election, but was bally left. It is said that the money he raised on the forged notes was devoted to persuading the Republican district leaders to get him some votes.

He was defeated by an overwhelming majority, and it was not long after this wrecking of his political ambitions that he gave up his paper and took to the boundless West.

Samuel Forrest, a swell truck driver, of 803 Eighth avenue, stopped his buggy in front of the Murray Hill Hotel this morning. He tossed the reins to a passing tramp, and disappeared in the magnificent lobby of the hostelry.

A few minutes later Mr. Forrest came out of the Murray Hill Hotel with Miss Lizzie Nolan and Miss Margaret Delaney, two of the most and Miss Margaret Delaney, two of the most fashionable chambermaids in New York City. They entered the carriage for a morning ride. While going down Second avenue an elevated railway train frightened the horses and they ran away. Mr. Forrest, Miss Nolan and Miss Delaney were thrown from the carriage, but luckily escaped with slight scalp wounds. A distinguished ambulance surgeon from Bellevue Hospital came and dressed their wounds. Miss Delaney and Miss Nolan returned to the Murray Hill Hotel. Mr. Forrest went to his residence in Eighth avenue.

BARGAINS FOR SLENDER PURSES.

Clothing, Dry Goods and Household Furnishings for Cash or Credit Buyers,

The large establishment of Thomas Kelly, on Sixth avenue, just below Seventeenth street, is well worthy of a visit from shoppers before they invest their money. In the various departments may be found a most complete stock of nearly everything one wants, either to wear or with which to furnish a house. A remarkable feature of this shop is that it is a good place to shop when you haven't any money. Kelly's is the oldest house in the city doing business in the "credit line"—selling goods on the instalment plan—and it is claimed to be the only one where a customer can buy $10 worth of goods and pay $1 down and $1 a week afterwards. Every article is plainly marked with the price, which does not vary, whether the purchaser gives cash on the spot or pays by instalments. For this reason an enormous patronage is accorded this firm, who offer surprising inducements this season in men's and boys' clothing, ladies' cloaks and suits of every description, dry goods of all kinds, furniture, carpets and bedding. The establishment, which has a narrow frontage on Sixth avenue, is six stories high, and there is an I, which extends to Seventeenth street, so that it covers an acre and a half of ground, which is all laid out in bargains. . may be found a most complete stock of nearly

Miss Ackerman Says It's Her Play.

To the Editor of The Evening World:

The injunction which is threatened against Mr. N. C. Goodwin from continuing to use the "A Gold Mine," is not on behalf of Mr. Joseph McKeever, as announced in the press, but by Miss Irone Ackerman, the authoress of the play, "The Gold Mine," who is represented by ex-Judge Dittenhoefer. Mr. McKeever has contracted to manage the production of Miss Ackerman's play, which probably accounts for the error in crediting him with the ownership or authorship of the play.

An EVENING WORLD reporter called at the above address this morning to see how Louis got mislaid. The Duoys live in a large tenementhouse on the fifth floor. The lower floors are so dark that one positively has to grope his way, and the doubt might well arise as to whether Louis had not been lost in the house.

When the reporter knocked at No. 20, on the top floor, a quiet, neatly dressed woman opened it. By her side was a boy.

He May Get Work in a Pinne Factory on Long Island—He Will Not Ge Back to Dr. Doepfner's Even for "Six Deliars a Week"-It Seems He Told the Truth About the Molls.

An EVENING WORLD reporter called at the home of Jacob Walters, 871 Third avenue, today, to investigate the story that his wife saw Willie Krulisch in the bakery of Mrs. Loster on

It will be recalled that in accounting for the ten or twelve minutes during which time the drug clerk was backed to death, in the rear of Otto Doepfner's drug store, in Third avenue, above Fifty-nixth street Willie Krulisch said that he went for rolls at about five or eight min-ntes after 7 o'clock. He said he went to Mrs. Loster's, near Fiftysecond street. He got back after the body of Wechang was found, at about 7.25. He said he got no rolls, because they were all gone at the Willie was not there that morning, and that all kinds of rolls were still in stock as late as 7.30 o'clock.

Said Jacob Walters to TRE EVENINO WORLD reporter to-day: "I was reading in THE EVENING WORLD the next day after the murder that Willie Krulisch said he was at Mrs. Loster's after rolls, and that they were all gone. My wife spoke up and said. 'I remember seeing a poy there. I wanted the same kind of rolls, but they were out."

"Had the boy an overcoat on?'I asked my wife, as I read further down.

"No,' said she, 'he had on a sort of gray jumper, faded and almost threadbare. He was wide across the shoulders and short."

This exactly tallies with Willie Krulisch's appearance on the fatal morning, and Mrs. Walters is positive that it was not more than a minute later than 7.10.

She did not offer her testimony at the trial because she did not suppose it would be needed, insamuch as Mrs. Loster and two young women employees were in the bakery at the time.

"This ought to clear away all doubt as to Willie Krulisch's innocence," says Counsellor Purty. "If the rolls were out at 7.10 then Willie did not lie about that, at any rate, and how could he know that fact had he not been there and inquired?"

Willie Krulisch was about the apartments of his brother Joseph this morning. When asked of his plans, he said, with a smille. "I don't know what my plans are. I see by the papers that I am a freak for a dime museum.

"Three men came here yesterday before my brother was out of bed. They were from a museum and offered $25 a week to appear in their museum. I have had no other offers like that.

Joseph Krulisch, the brother, said: "I hope Willie will get a chance to learn the trade at Steinway's. He is to see the foreman Sunday, and my uncle thinks he will get $5$ a week at first."

CLERK HARRIOT HITS BACK

LESSON TO A DISTRICT-ATTORNEY ON THE LAW OF STOLEN PROPERTY.

Property Clerk Harriot is in an indignant frame of mind to-day and feels that Assistant District-Attorney Goff has made an improper use of his office to wreak political vengeance Goff being a County Democrat, and Mr. Harriot a Tammany Hall adherent.

Goff is reported to have told Judge Cowing that Harriot refused to surrender property that Harriot refused to surrender property needed in evidence, and the Judge issued an order, with the remark that he would lock up Mr. Harriot unless he obeyed it.

The facts in the case, as shown in Mr. Harriot's records, are that on March 2 Patrolman Coughlein, of the Church Street Squad, delivered a revolver taken from Antonio Fazio to be held as evidence. On the morning of April 10 the policeman called on Mr. Harriot without a subpoens or order and wanted the revolver.

Mr. Harriot refused to surrender it and gave to the policeman a copy of section 293, Laws of New York, 1882, as follows:
If any reperty or money placed in the custody of the

If any property or money placed in the custody of the property clears shall be desired as evidence in any noise or criminal court, such property shall be deliv-ered to any officer who shall present an order to that effect from such court. Such property, however, shall not be retained in said court, but shall be returned to such property clerk to be disposed of socording to the previous provisions of this chapter.

Policeman Conghlein reported the facts to Assistant District-Attorney Goff, and he issued a subpena with the words stencilled across its face. "Bring property if any in the case." Before the policeman presented his subpena or made a report Mr. Gott went before Judge Cowing and entered a complaint again." or made a report Mr. Gott went before Judge Cowing and entered a complaint against Mr. Harriot, and had him reprimanded. Mean-while, the policeman presented his subpona, received the property, and had it in the Dis-trict-Attornes's office ready for use. This morning Mr. Harriot sent for Policeman Coughlein and will have him make a full state-ment in writing of the facts of the case, which will be presented to Judge Cowing.

They Met at the Inauguration.

ISPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD. BALTIMORE, April 11. - Francis P. Murphy, merchant of this city, first learned from yestermerchant of this city, first learned from yester-day's papers that his daughter, Mary, a pretty brunette of twenty, was a bride. The groom is a young German named Van Beuth, whom Miss Murphy first met and loved on Inauguration Day at Washington. The pair of lovers ar-ranged a meeting and marriage at Camden Sta-tion, where Miss Murphy went under pretence of visiting relatives. The wodding leaves dis-consolate a young Philadelphian to whom Miss Murphy had allowed herself to become engaged at her parents' desire.

WHISKEY TRUSTS.

NOW AN ORGANIZATION OF DEALERS OF

THE EASTERN STATES,

The wholesale whiskey dealers of the Eastern States have formed an association, which they claim is merely a social organization, but which Trust.

bers to an Evening Would reporter this morning, the wholesalers have been selling goods at prices so low that there was no profit in doing prices so low that there was no profit in doing business.

This state of trade is said to have begun about the middle of February, and is alleged to be the result of the operations of the gigantic Whiskey Manufacturers' Trust.

This Trust tries to crush out the manufacturers who won't go into their organization, and the latter, to protect themselves, sell their goods direct to the retail dealer.

The new Trust intends to co-operate with the distillers Trust, by putting their prices down to a figure below what the anti-Trust manufacturers are now selling their goods.

They will be unable to stand this strain and will be driven to the wall, and then the wolesale dealers' Trust steps in and raises prices to what they term "a living profit."

The Association has had two meetings at the Hoffman House this week, at which several names for the organization have been proposed, but none were settled upon.

All the large wholesale houses in New York, Boston, Philadelphia and Baltimore were represented at the meeting. The Western Trust holds its annual meeting at Peoria, Ill., next week and some sort of an agreement will be made between the two Trusts.

FOOTZOWSKI'S BURIED TREASURE.

He Has His Employer's Wife Arrested for Stealing His Savings. John Footzowski is a thrifty German blacksmith, his one ambition since coming to this country five years ago being to save enough to visit his parents in Germany.

He did not trust the banks, and kept his savings stored in a pocket of his trousers made ings stored in a pocket of his trousers made especially for that purpose. He intended to sail for his destination last week, but was persuaded by his employer. Frank Snyder, of No. 234 East Third street, to wait for balmier weather.

Footzowski had a presentiment that he would lose his savings (2008) if he kept it upon his person and so he buried it three feet underground in the cellar of his employer's residence.

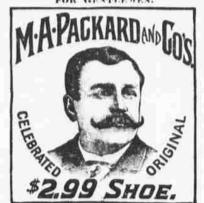

This was on April 3, and two days later, when he went to look if his money was safe, it was gone. When he recovered from his surprise he caused the arrest of his employer's wife on suspicion of having stolen it.

She was arraigned for examination at the Essex Market Police Court this morning, and Lawyer John C. Fraser, who appeared in her behalf, subjected Footsowski to a cross-examination. ination.

He said that Mrs. Snyder had seen him bury the money and was the only one who knew it was there. The examination was adjourned.
